Introduction

This small dictionary has been compiled solely for the English speaking visitor to Myanmar who will be in this country for only a few days but would nevertheless like to speak a few friendly words to people he might come across or maybe feels a need for something handy to turn to, should he find himself in an emergency situation and there is a communication gap that must be bridged quickly.

With this objective in mind, it is felt that the Myanmar script with its 33 letters of the alphabet, various symbols for vowels and semivowels, tone and punctuation marks might prove to be too complex for this type of user. As such, characters from the English alphabet with which he is already familiar are used instead to give a fair equivalent of the sounds of some 2,000 or so Myanmar words and expressions selected for this purpose. Since the two languages belong to entirely different language families, a phonetically precise rendering by this means is of course not possible and a pronunciation guide has been provided to explain the essential rules of exception where pronouncing of such words and letters in the way as they are usually done in English might not produce the desired result.

Verbs in the English entries are indicated by the addition of prepositions when verbs and nouns have identical forms.

In order to indicate the proper sense in which a word is being defined, synonyms are provided (within brackets and in boldfaced type)

bad (rotten)      pote ; thoe

bad (wicked)      hsoe

The proper equivalent corresponding to different contexts in which a word may be used is indicated by accompanying notations within brackets (in whitefaced type)

For example :-

brother (elder ; younger) (of male) ako; nyi (of female ) ako; maung

ie-

elder brother to a boy = ako younger brother to a boy = nyi
elder brother to a girl = ako younger brother to a girl = maung

Guide to Pronunciation

It will be worthwhile remembering the following points :-

k	is pronounced without aspiration as in	skip
kh	is pronounced as in	key
g	is hard, as in	get
t	is also unaspirated, as in	star
th	is pronounced as in but sometimes hard , as in	thick though
ht	as initial, is pronounced as in	tar
ng	as initial, is pronounced as in	sing
k, r, t	at the end of a syllable are in reality glottal stops and are not to be articulated.
n, ng	as consonant finals indicate nasalization and are not voiced.
h	as consonant final indicates the jerkily shortened tone.

The high falling tone (as in far, kin etc ) is distinguished from the level tone (narcotics , martini) by duplication of final consonants ( as in karr, kinn ) where it is deemed necessary to do so to distinguish these from ( kar, kin ) which have different meanings. The checked tone is effected by the addition of a final h where it is necessary to make it distinct from the other tones.
